

To all Hokkaido residents and visitors

Please help prevent the spread of Foot-and-Mouth Disease (FMD)

FMD is an infectious livestock disease and is currently spreading around the world.

The virus responsible for FMD is highly contagious. In order to protect the health of our livestock, we would like to ask for your understanding regarding the following:

Please do not enter farms that raise livestock unless absolutely necessary.

Please cooperate with the disinfection policies being carried out at each facility.

FMD is a disease primarily seen in cloven-hoofed animals (cows, pigs, sheep, etc.) and is not transmittable to humans.
